

Deaf to Cross risks

THE reality is that neither the Sydney council nor the State Government took seriously the dangerous evolution in Kings Cross prior to the lockouts.

That was despite years of warnings and complaints by residents, police, other emergency workers and St Vincent's casualty staff.

Had their ears not been tuned solely to the AHA and its demands, those two tragic deaths as well as much other crime and grossly unsociable behaviour would have been avoided, Mr Rodger (Your Say, April 29).

And I seriously doubt that Centrelink is being bombarded with unemployed hospitality workers. After all, nothing could be more portable or saleable than alcohol.

If it doesn't sell in Kings Cross people will find it anywhere.
